To Whom It May Concern:

Marc Wilkes, Omegaman, visited our school earlier this month. He did two very age appropriate presentations for our kindergarten-second graders and another presentation for our third through sixth graders. The message he delivered was simply yet impactful as some of our students are still talking about being HEROs. He did a fantastic job of weaving an anti-bullying message with empowerment and physical acts that left even our most skeptical staff and students talking positively about his visit and, most importantly, his message. He really connects with children so that the message is what is remembered long after his visit.

After the presentation, our PTO was able to create a display case of artifacts from the presentation that serves as a visual reminder to us all that we need to stop bullies and believe in ourselves.

It is without reservation that I would highly recommend bringing Omegaman to your school. We are extremely grateful to our PTO for such a wonderful gift. I believe that our students will be better people as a result of the visit/presentation.

Sincerely,
